Tying Law to Science Is Silly Business

The foolhardiness of adults trying to tell other adults how to live is never so obvious as when do-gooders call on the findings of science to support them in their efforts to alter the rest of us with an oppressive law.

These miniature Caesars fancy they have put their tyranny on solid ground because, they think, science is factual and unchangeable. Actually, however, science is as fluid and changeable as quicksand—the least dependable of all earthly phenomena for a lawmaker to lean on... supporting a law today but leaving him high and dry tomorrow.

The case in point is the campaign of propaganda obviously mounted at the eventual goal of adopting a law to prohibit the sale of tobacco, on the grounds that it is inherently cancerous. Certain laboratory tests did for a while support this scientific position, although their validity is so uncertain that the mere mention of the subject started fights among the doctors. Some cigarette-smokers switched to cigars or pipes, but finally the public threw caution to the winds and cigarette sales last year reached a new peak.

The lobby for prohibition of tobacco sales suffered a setback congressmen, recognizing the fact by an incredulous and angry public, backed away from the issue.

And just in time, too. For only a week science did an about-face and indicated tobacco would be a cause of cancer suspicion. Last Friday at Austin, Texas, member of the U.S. Surgeon General's Advisory Committee closed that whatever cancer-causing lies in tobacco is traceable to certain elements in the smoke, and these elements can be removed.

So the great tobacco scare is over, showing the folly of attempting to base repressive laws on scientific "facts" that are as old one year and invalid the next.

Imagine the folly of working emotions up to a point where actually outlawed tobacco products — only to discover our law was wrong and the law dead even before we could get it into enforcement!

America has had many odd ideas and notions that were written into law or just passed. There was prohibition of liquor, which became a disaster. And there was that great deal of drum-beating about other plausible absurdities, fortunately, didn't quite make it over Capitol Hill.

One time a sizeable majority of Americans thought it to be a law that people should be required, for the sake of good health, to eat graham crackers.

Another crowd were fanatics who, also for health reasons, would have forbidden the use of meat.

These people had one thing in common: They would work for a living — but never for themselves.

To say how you would live in this land of supposedly equal men.

No Moving JFK Body for a Year

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Corps of Army Engineers, contradicting other Army sources, said today the body of President John F. Kennedy would not be moved to a new gravesite until next year.

Previous word was that the remains would be moved about 40 feet to a new location sometime within five weeks, after darkness has settled on the hills of Arlington National Cemetery. That indicated that the reburial would take place by Nov. 22, the third anniversary of the young president's assassination.

However, the office of the chief of engineers, said in a statement today:

"The final landscape design proposal for the gravesite area is being developed by the landscape architect. As we have explained, the gravesite will not be completed formally until next spring.

Wood Products Important on Hempstead

This week of October 16 to 22 is Forest Products Week Nationwide and has very special significance in Hope and Hempstead County. There are a dozen firms, some large, some small, who process wood or manufacture tools and equipment to handle timber.

The total value of the timber industry to Hempstead will range from 12 to 15 million Dollars annually in Payrolls, timber purchases and allied services making the number one industry.

There are approximately 900 persons engaged in timber growing, harvesting, handling and processing in Hempstead and immediate surrounding area. To point out the value of timber to this area and remind you how it affects your daily life, Bill Gunter and his promotion committee have arranged several events.

For example, there will be displays of pulp wood at 2nd and Main and in the Shopping Center. Local persons are asked to guess how many paper bags can be made from that bundle of wood. Three step ladders from the southwest wood will be given as prizes for the 3 best guesses. Place mats will be distributed to local restaurants. Diners are invited to take them home when they finish a meal.

There will be exhibits of wood products by local firms in both Citizen and First National Bank. The week will be concluded with a visit of the Forest Queen Call Bigge on Friday, Oct. 21st. A tour will take the queen and local citizens to Hope Lbr. Manufacturing Co. and Split Hickory to view their operation. Miss Bigge will then be the special guest of the Rotary Club for luncheon.

The Hope Star and KXAR will spotlight local wood working industries with pictures and stories all week. This is all done to remind you to appreciate our forest, their economic value, their importance as water sheds, a haven for wildlife and their beauty. Keep Arkansas Green and you keep it Prosperous and Beautiful. Protect our forest at all times.

Compensation Upheld in Local Case

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — The Arkansas Supreme Court today reversed a Conway Circuit Court refusal to give a Morrilton newspaper reporter an appeal from a $100 traffic fine in justice of the peace court.

Joe Hoelzman Jr. was fined $100 and costs after he was involved in a one-car accident April 4, 1965 on Arkansas 9 near Morrilton.

Hoelzman contended that he left the road to avoid hitting a cow and telephoned a policeman who, he said, told him he could leave the car if it was not impeding traffic.

A day later Hoelzman was arrested for reckless driving by a state trooper. Hoelzman charged that Conway County Sheriff Marlin Hawkins sent the trooper to arrest him.

The justice of the peace offered to reduce the fine to $50 and suspend it on condition that Hoelzman write for the court 500 times, "I will not drive in a reckless manner."

The lower court refused to allow an appeal on grounds that the time limit for appeal had expired. Hoelzman said the justice of the peace promised to prepare appeal papers, but that the 30-day limit for appeal expired without the justice of the peace keeping his promise.

The high court also reversed a Hempstead Circuit Court decision denying Workmen's Compensation for Mrs. Myrtle Douglas, whose husband died of a heart attack. She claimed his death was the result of his employment but this was disputed by his employer and his insurance carrier. The Workmen's Compensation Commission ruled against Mrs. Douglas and the Hempstead court upheld the ruling.

Lost Boy Shot Himself But to Recover

MARIETTA, Ga. (AP) — An 11-year-old boy, lost in the woods and wounded by a ricocheting bullet, shot himself in the temple because "I couldn't stand the pain no longer."

However, Billy Painter was found, rushed to a hospital for emergency surgery and early today was reported in fair condition.

Billy, the son of Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Painter of Decatur, had gone into the mountains of northwest Georgia with his father, a younger brother and an uncle for a weekend hunting trip. Painter said Billy left the camp early Sunday to shoot squirrels.

Painter said his son told rescuers "he shot at a squirrel and the bullet glanced and hit him above the right eye."

When he didn't return in a short while, the father said, a search was started. The search was enlarged by volunteers later but Billy wasn't found until early Monday, still conscious, in a wooded area about a mile from the camp site.

Painter said the boy told rescuers that he had given up hope of ever being found and that he had placed his .22 caliber rifle against his temple and fired because of the intense pain from the earlier wound above his right eye.

Says Education Needs Priority

Negroes Sue to Integrate at Willisville

FORT SMITH, Ark. (AP) — U.S. District Court here was asked Monday to order the Willisville (Nevada County) School district to admit Negro children to school and to provide them with bus transportation.

The suit filed by John W. Walker, a Little Rock lawyer, said that before the 1966-67 school term, Negro pupils in Willisville were transported by bus to the all-Negro Oak Grove School District, which decided before the current school year to stop accepting pupils from Willisville.

The suit said the Willisville District continues to deny admission to Negro pupils "solely because of their race or color."

The plaintiffs asked the court to issue a permanent injunction enjoining the school district from interfering with the rights of the Negro pupils to attend the Willisville School on the same terms as other pupils in the district.

Arkansas Automobile Dealers Association will meet in Hope on Wednesday, Oct. 19 at the Town & Country.

China Brings U. S., Russia Bit Closer

By LEWIS GULICK

WASHINGTON (AP) — A seeming Soviet willingness to do business with the United States may be due in part to Red China's setbacks in the struggle for leadership of the Communist world.

This opinion comes from some U.S. diplomats after four exploratory sessions with Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko — three with Secretary of State Dean Rusk and Gromyko's call on President Johnson.

A year ago Gromyko stayed away from Washington, though he was in New York for the U. N. General Assembly opening. U.S. forces were then going into Viet Nam in a big way, and a seemingly potent Peking was accusing the Soviet Union of conniving with the "imperialist" enemy.

This fall Gromyko agreed to final talks aimed at starting direct U.S.-Soviet commercial air service, he abandoned some earlier objections to a treaty to preserve outer space for peaceful use and he showed interest in a pact to outlaw the spread of nuclear weapons.

U.S. Kremlinologists who see in this a warming-up of U.S.-Soviet relations are inclined to give some credit to Mao Tse-tung — for the Chinese leader's Red Guard rampage which has tumbled Peking's prestige inside as well as outside of the Communist camp.

According to this theory, Moscow has forged so far ahead in the Sino-Soviet rivalry that the Kremlin can shrug off China's charges and feel free to pursue its own foreign policy ends.

There is another school of thought among Washington experts which fails to find any marked improvement in Moscow-Washington relations at this time.

They say the Kremlin leadership has kept the door open right along for East-West accords which might suit the Soviets. They note Gromyko continued in Viet Nam, voice support for Hanoi and rebuff peace approaches.

This analysis sees Kremlin policy as partly harsh, partly accommodating toward the West, and pragmatic in dealing with any specific item. So what looks like a smile from Moscow today on one issue could turn to a frown tomorrow on another.

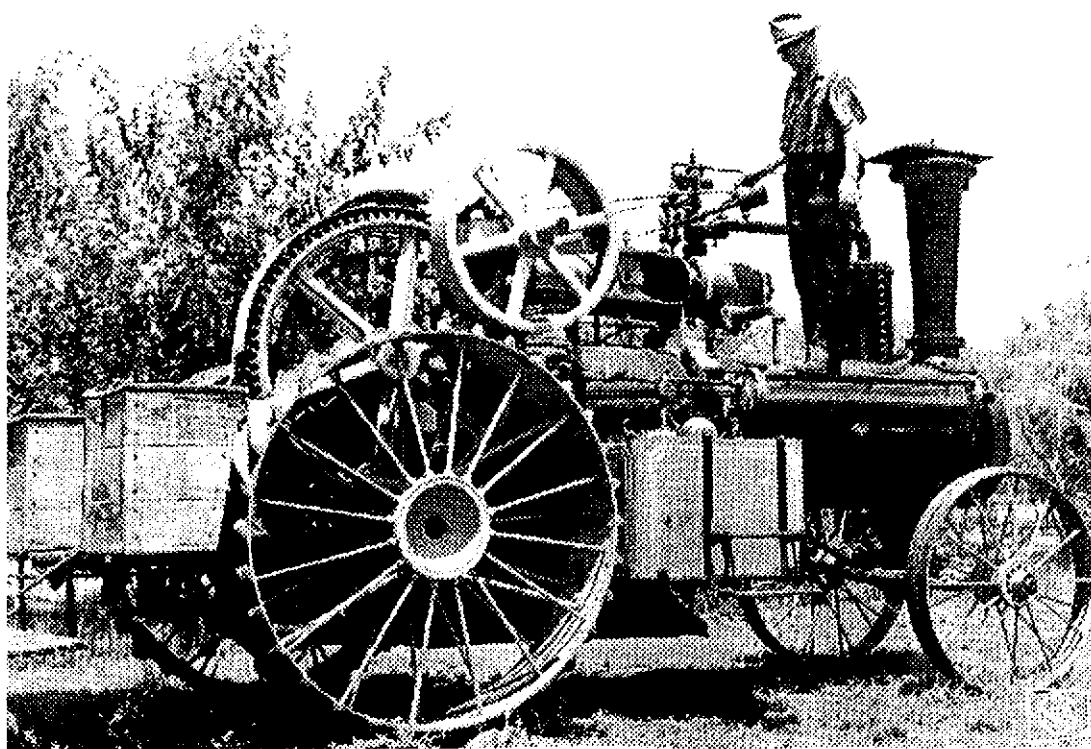

But the differing interpretations do come to one common conclusion: That a wide gulf still separates Washington from Moscow and bridging it will not be easy.

James Marlow, who usually writes this column, is on vacation.)

Law Examiners Appointed

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Jack Deacon of Jonesboro and Comer Boyett of Searcy have been appointed to the state Board of Law Examiners.

The Arkansas Supreme Court said Monday that the appointments will expire Dec. 31, 1969.

A MUSEUM PIECE tractor, still in working condition, will be the focal point of the "pop art" Agriculture Show at the 1966 State Fair of Texas, Oct. 8-23 at Dallas. Owned by Hal S. Smith of Cresson, who collects and restores ancient farm equipment as a hobby, the one-cylinder tractor was manufactured around 1885. More than merely a field machine, it could also be used to power sawmills, cotton gins and threshers.

Important Changes in Congress

By CARL P. LEUBSDORF
WASHINGTON (AP) — Important changes are looming in the congressional leadership of both Democrats and Republicans with health and the fortune of politics playing the decisive roles.

The 1964 election, which reduced Republicans to their smallest congressional representation since the mid-1930s, resulted in an upheaval among House Republicans.

Rep. Charles A. Halleck, the GOP leader since he led a coup against former Speaker Joseph W. Martin Jr. in 1959, was turned out in favor of a "new look" leadership headed by Rep. Gerald R. Ford.

If Republicans fail to make significant gains in the Nov. 8 House elections, Ford may be on the spot. If the GOP makes a sizable pickup, however, the Michigan congressman stands to get some of the credit and to solidify his position.

House Democrats, too, have a question mark — the health of Democratic Leader Carl B. Albert who last month suffered a heart attack.

Albert is the heir apparent to the speakership, held since 1962 by 74-year-old John W. McCormack, and expects to resume his duties in January.

But McCormack's age and Albert's health have been the subject of much discreet talk and maneuvering among House Democrats of late.

The No. 3 man, Rep. Hale Boggs of Louisiana, faces substantial opposition among Northern Democrats because of his votes against civil rights bills. His chances may improve if the ranks of Northern Democrats are sharply reduced in November.

Rep. Richard Bolling of Missouri, defeated by Albert for Democratic leader in 1962, is one possible opponent of Boggs, and others are waiting in the wings. Boggs' deputy, Rep. John E. Moss of California, has been ill and is not considered a contender.

Of late, Boggs has been preoccupied with his own re-election campaign and much of the leadership burden has fallen on Rep. John J. McFall, D-Calif., an assistant leader.

In the Senate, Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen's health has been a matter of increasing concern. The 70-year-old leader is recovering from a broken hip.

His assistant, Sen. Thomas H. Kuchel of California, has much opposition from Republican conservatives who are reported planning to try to oust him from the No. 2 leadership post in January.

Their choice as his successor would be Sen. Roman L. Hruska of Nebraska, a close associate of Dirksen who many believe would be his choice for the leadership. Dirksen said he is neutral on any possible challenge to Kuchel.

On the Democratic side, Sen. Mike Mansfield seems well entrenched as his party's leader. Talk he might give up the arduous post seems to have evaporated.

But there have been indications Mansfield and his assistant, Sen. Russell B. Long of Louisiana, do not get on too well although Mansfield praised Long in glowing terms just last week.

Although Mansfield might prefer someone like Maine's Edmund S. Muskie or Rhode Island's John O. Pastore as his assistant and eventual successor, Long probably would be hard to nudge aside.

Catch Man in High Speed Syle

KARACHI, Pakistan (AP) — Karachi police and customs officials caught their man in a high-speed chase Sunday on the Arabian Sea after he fled aboard his yacht.

Kassim Bhatti, 50, suspected of international gold smuggling, was overtaken 40 miles off Karachi by a police boat and arrested. He was reported heading for the Dubai sheikhdom in the Persian Gulf.

The hunt for Bhatti started after customs police discovered $500,000 worth of gold in his mansion on an island five miles out from Karachi.

U. S. Playing Bartender to Aged, Poor

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Uncle Sam played bartender Monday to the aged and poor inmates of several Northern California institutions. He uncorked 40,000 shots — on the Collector of Customs George Brokaw said part was a scotch-type whisky, part was rum and the rest creme de cafe.

The whisky was confiscated because it was falsely labeled as a product of Scotland. The rest went unclaimed when an importing firm went bankrupt.

Recipients were the Little Sisters of the Poor here and in Oakland, the Jewish Home for the Aged, the Laguna Honda Home and the California Veterans Home at Yountville.

Mother Superior Aurelie, Little Sisters of the Poor administrator, said the drinks will be served as therapeutic hot toddies — whenever one of the charges has a cold or feels ill.

Thinks State Violated Anti Trust Act

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Six tobacco manufacturers and state Revenue Commissioner Doris McCallain conspired to violate the Sherman Anti-Trust Act, the R and B Tobacco Co. of Forrest City said in a lawsuit Monday.

The firm, which has been frustrated in efforts to obtain a wholesale permit from the state, charged in U.S. District Court suit that Mrs. McCallain and the manufacturers "engaged in a criminal conspiracy in violation of the Sherman Anti-Trust Act in restraint of trade."

Manufacturers named in the suit are Phillip Morris Inc., Reynolds Tobacco Co., P. Lorillard Co., American Tobacco Co., U.S. Tobacco Co. and Larus and Brother, Inc.

The suit seeks $48,000 damages and $2,000 a month until what the suit terms a conspiracy is ended.

R and B has won two cases in state courts over the permit denial.

Urges Change in Freedom of Choice

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Under the Little Rock School Board to scrap its freedom of choice integration plan, an attorney for the NAACP urged the 6th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals Monday.

Henry M. Atkinson of New York, representing the NAACP legal fund, also asked the court to direct that Negro pupils be assigned to schools on the basis of geographical attendance zones.

The court took the appeal under advisement.

Under the freedom of choice plan, Negro pupils entering the first, seventh and 10th grades are required to choose the school they prefer to attend.

The choice is honored if classroom space is available.

U.S. District Judge Gordon Young of Little Rock approved the plan Jan. 14. The appeal to the court at St. Louis stems from a desegregation suit filed as a class action Nov. 4, 1964.

Television and Radio

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP) — "Brigadoon," almost 20 years after its first Broadway production, lost little and in some instances gained a bit in its faithful transition to the television screen Saturday night.

ABC's 90-minute adaptation of the Allen Lerner-Fredrick Loewe musical seemed to be exactly the same as the first production. The music surely has withstood the test of time — four of the songs have become standards. And gentle fantasy never really goes out of style.

Robert Goulet, as the young American hero, was in fine voice. Sally Ann Howes seemed exactly right as Fiona, Thomas Carlisle, playing the bridegroom, exhibited an excellent tenor.

There was nothing the matter with Marilyn Mason's voice, but she seemed too much of a sweet ingénue to play man-chasing Meg. Peter Falk, who seems to give a Dead End kid quality to all his roles, was not exactly the ideal fellow to be lost in a misty legend of the Scottish highlands.

"Portrait of Van Cliburn," the second NBC Telephone Hour in its new format, proved to be a superficial examination of the pianist's professional life, broken up now and then with some of his music.

The joke — "What would you say if I told you you were on Candid Camera?" — has begun to run thin after all these years of practical jokes. So have some of the jokes.

The long-playing CBS show started off Sunday night with a woman wearing a pair of earrings, each of which contained a live white mouse. The big joke was to look at the amazement on the face of a bystander.

The windup had Bess Myerson and a companion, disguised as cookery experts, throwing whipped cream pies at each other. They kept it up long after the comedy had evaporated and it was just messy.

AMERICAN LEGION AUXILIARY

Attending the 12th District Fall Conference of the American Legion Auxiliary Sunday afternoon October 16 at Horatio were Mrs. Joe Jones and Mrs. Ben Edmiston from Hope Unit 12.

Mrs. Elbert Keener of Ashdown, president, had charge of the meeting. Representing the State Department from Little Rock were Miss Inez Martin, Western Division Vice - President, and Mrs. Eunestine Glass, rehabilitation chairman. Miss Martin spoke on "Membership" and Mrs. Glass outlined the hospital program now being carried out at the three Arkansas Veterans' Hospitals.

Hope Unit 12 received a national citation for 100 per cent membership for 1965-66. The award is presented by the national president and membership committee in recognition of the outstanding participation of the Unit.

Texarkana Unit won the travel prize with 8 members present who traveled the longest distance. The DeQueen Unit extended the invitation for the Spring Conference of 1967.

CIRCLE 4 MEETS

The hostess served a dessert plate and coffee to the members present and one guest, Miss Lora Koen.

THE WMS MEETS

Mrs. Doyle Huff was hostess to Circle 1 WMS of the First Baptist Church on Monday, Oct. 17. Eight members were joined by one visitor, Mrs. George Young, president of the WMS.

The meeting was opened by Mrs. A. B. Martin, acting chairman. The call to prayer was given by Mrs. Clarence Geist. The program presented by Mrs. R. E. Chism was on the conditions found in the Appalachian Country. During refreshment hour the hostess served a delicious salad plate.

FRIDAY BRIDGE CLUB

New Minks Are Belted

MINK LOOKS BETTER than ever when belted. Autumn Haze natural brown mink long jacket (left) has hip-hugging belt across the back. High convertible collar and narrow slash pockets accent the columnar look. This is a Cortessa design for Barnett & Weitzner. Rovalia, pale rose mink, has been fashioned by Ben Kahn into the elegant casual coat (center). The fur is styled horizontally and topped with a widespread collar. It's cinched at the waist with a leather thong. The high-rising belt is used on the pale beige Tourmaline mink coat (right) by Alixandre. All styles are of Emba rare natural mink.

NEW YORK—(NEA)—Contrary to those tired old jokes, women often do buy their own mink. And despite the cost, shopping for mink is a lovely way to spend an afternoon.

It's fun to be draped in Rovalia, Autumn Haze, Azurene, Cerulian and every other shade of rare natural mink from white to gunmetal until you find what suits you and your budget best.

This season not only the luscious shades of natural mink give pleasure but the designs have never been better.

Heading the new look in coats are the belted styles.

ONE SLIP SHOULDN'T RUIN A SUMMER

Dear Helen: They say "one swallow doesn't make a summer." Should one slip spoil it?

Last April I had a birthday party and invited a few boys and girls. We had lots of fun. I served pizza and pop and everybody got along fine. No trouble at all. They were all real good kids.

Then I came into the kitchen to get another pop and my friend was standing by the refrigerator with a bottle of pop in her hand. One of the boys walked in and I swung around to face him. Crash! My bottle hit her bottle and both broke. She got a deep cut on her wrist and I had a bad gash on my ankle. The party broke up with emergency treatment — she had three stitches and my ankle was in bandages and my mother was a nervous wreck.

Now my mother says strictly no more parties because of what happened at my first one, Helen, it was an accident. Is this fair?

Dear S.M.: Give your mother a little more time and I HOPE she comes around. She's being as timid as the woman who won't let her daughter go swimming because she once fell off a diving board. —H

Dear Helen: I am 18. For as long as I can remember, I've been crazy about the boy next door. I've been out with him twice, and last night he tried to kiss me goodnight. Naturally, I refused. I'm greatly disappointed in him because I thought he was "good." Now I know he's just as dangerous as any other boy.

Of course I know everyone has faults. Down deep I don't think he is all bad. How can I tell him, and not hurt his feelings, that I know he's got a problem and I'll help him work it out? —A.S.

Dear A: Surely you jest! I hope you're being "funny-ha-ha," because otherwise you're "funny-peculiar." The only thing "bad" about a good night kiss from a boy you've been crazy about for years—is not getting

Some belts ride high, others hug the hipline or circle the waist for controlled fullness.

From a strong Paris influence comes the tent coat, flowing outward from its petite neck and shoulder line. Another favorite silhouette is the fitted front with swing back.

There are side closings and edge-to-edge front closings that eliminate the bulk of double fur.

For at home or apres ski, mink has been fashioned into overblouses, vests, ponchos, coveralls and culottes.

Evening fur fashions also take many shapes. New for after-five wear is hip-length, A-line jacket designed in Jasmine, Emba pure white.

with a horseshoe collar and (funnel) sleeves. The snowy fur has been fashioned in undulating stripes that move across the jacket like soft snow banks.

There's more this season to ponder than ever before for any gal who "thinks mink."

Bob Thomas at the Movies

By BOB THOMAS
AP Movie-Television Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP) —Are movie studios going to run away from Los Angeles? The city government is alarmed at the prospect and is planning steps to prevent it.

This month the mayor's Economic Development Board took official notice of the situation by appointing a committee to study means of inducing studios to remain in the metropolitan area.

Suggestions for encouragement included zoning advantages and a new studio complex within the city. But it's entirely possible that the city will come up with too little too late.

The trend in recent years has been a reduction of film making in Hollywood — a nongeographic term since studios are also located in Culver City, Westwood, BURBANK, Universal City, and Studio City. Obsolete studios such as Hal Roach's have been leveled for shopping centers, and no new studios have been built.

Several of the big studios are reaching the ripe age of 40 and require extensive overhauls to be modernized. Most are in areas that are heavily taxed. As a result, they have started eyeing future moves to less populated areas. Not incidentally, they hope to escape Los Angeles' smog, which sometimes interferes with outdoor shooting.

Three years ago MGM, 20th Century-Fox and Columbia started the industry by revealing discussions for a combined studio to be built on Fox Ranch in Malibu Canyon. The talks came to naught, but the idea of seeking new quarters for filmmaking was not abandoned.

MGM took an option on 1,500 acres at Conejo, north of the San Fernando Valley, and ordered a feasibility survey on building a new studio there. Preliminary sketches were drawn up, and a construction cost of $32 million was estimated.

Fox, which had to sell its backlot — now Century City — to survive the "Cleopatra" debacle, found itself short of space when the company's fortunes reversed. The management ordered a survey by Stanford Research Institute to determine whether building a new studio was economically sound.

Stanford Research decreed that Fox should stay at the Westwood lot until 1970. The studio has added six new stages to take care of the production overflow. Eventually the entire operation will be shifted to the company's 3,000 acres in Malibu Canyon, a 30-minute drive from the present studio.

With Metropolitan Los Angeles continuing to press on the pioneering studios, it seems apparent that some of them will be on the move. Says Columbia production chief Mike Frankovich: "It will come some day, I keep telling my son to buy all the land he can afford in the San Fernando Valley because all of the studios will be out there eventually."

Recovered treasure of greatest depth from which sunken treasure has been recovered — using an observation chamber — was 475 feet in reaching the Niagara, sunk by a mine in 1940 off New Zealand. Of the eight tons of gold on board 95 per cent was recovered.

Mrs. Swindle Loses Round in Custody Case

PARAGOULD, Ark. (AP) — An English girl who came to Arkansas one year ago to fight custody of her daughter Monday she plans to stay until 3-year-old Sharon Swindle is back in her arms.

"I would go through anything to get my daughter back," said Mrs. Valerie Swindle. "That's my worth everything to me."

After commitment to continue battle with her former husband, Gerald Swindle, came hours after the U.S. Supreme Court refused to rule on the case.

Mrs. Swindle and Swindle had been divorced for some months when the Jonesboro man went to her home at Cheltenham, England, to see their child.

She fled England with Sharon on his return to Arkansas as a Greene County Chancery Court order granting him temporary custody of the child.

Mrs. Swindle then came to Arkansas last Oct. 21 and hearing was set to determine Swindle should retain custody, and the child disappeared before the hearing.

Swindle, the child and the second Mrs. Swindle are reportedly living in Los Angeles.

Through her attorney, Maude Cathey of Paragould, Mrs. Swindle sought to get the state supreme court to overturn the Greene County order, but the court said it had to uphold the order.

Then, on Monday, the U.S. Supreme Court refused to take the case.

"I am disappointed but I kind expected it," Mrs. Swindle said.

Asked if she would be in Arkansas had she known the problem she would incur, she said: "I didn't know what I would be going through and if I had advance warning, it wouldn't have made me a bit of difference to me." Mrs. Swindle is working at a shoe factory.

They said he plans to resort to "other remedies," but he did elaborate on his plans.

"Birth Tree"

When a new child is born, many European farmers plant a "birth tree" and the welfare of the child is believed to be connected with the tree's growth. In some districts of Switzerland, a pear tree is planted for a girl and an apple for a boy.

IT'S HAPPENED before and will probably happen again, but it's always news when a shapely young lady like Donna Rossi, 19, of St. Louis, receives a letter from the local draft board.

The letter, addressed to Donna Rossi, directed her to report for a pre-induction physical. She doesn't plan to obey the order.

Girl in LBJ Picture Is Awarded

MELBOURNE, Australia (AP) — The Melbourne Sun devoted half its front page today to an autographed photograph of President Johnson presented to a Melbourne singer in 1942.

The photograph was radiated from the woman, Mrs. Sydney Goldman of New York City, to Melbourne after White House reporters ribbed the President about a dark-haired girl seated on a park bench who was included in Johnson's wartime movies of Australia.

Mrs. Goldman's sister telephoned the Melbourne newspaper and said she believed the girl in the movie was her sister Tessa, who is now the wife of the vice president of New York City's Radio City Music Hall.

Mrs. Goldman was not available to newsmen in New York Monday night but her husband confirmed that she had sent the photograph to the Sun and had made the statements attributed to her.

Mrs. Goldman, contacted by telephone from Melbourne, gave a copy of the photograph to the Sun's New York bureau. The inscription on it read: "For Tessa, with many thanks for Melbourne hospitality, Lyndon Johnson, June 17, 1942."

Mrs. Goldman told the Sun by telephone she met Johnson at the home of Lady Mabel Brookes, wife of Sir Norman Brookes, a former international tennis star.

"He is a very charming man," Mrs. Goldman said of Johnson. "I remember him as being as handsome as a film star. I felt I knew him very well." Mrs. Goldman said she and Lady Brookes' daughter, Elaine, became very good friends with Johnson.

Bison Released in New Mexico

GALLUP, N.M. (AP) — Ten bison — five bulls and five cows — have been released near Gallup in the heart of New Mexico's Indian country.

The animals were brought from Montana. New Mexico Game and Fish Department officials said it is hoped the animals will start building a herd large enough for hunting.

Young Actor Thinks Highly of Stars Who Worked Hard

By HAL BOYLE
NEW YORK (AP) — Gratitude is as rare among movie stars as shyness is among flag-pole sitters.

An exception is Rod Taylor, the buoyant and charmingly boisterous Australian.

"We're lucky to be around — us young punks," he said. "But I don't believe in luck in our industry."

"Luck makes people disrespectful and supercilious. Us young ones become smug too early. If you don't try hard enough, you don't last long enough."

Rod's own heroes are Clark Gable, Humphrey Bogart, and Spencer Tracy.

"They were great stars because they worked hard," he said. "And no one has taken their place."

"I'm not being insincere. People call me a movie star, but I know I don't deserve it yet."

But the ruggedly handsome actor, who recently completed "The Liquidators," was being unduly humble. At 36 his talent and industry have put him in the front rank of his profession.

In 1954 a prize-winning performance in Australia won him a plane ticket to London. Camille, Rod stopped off at Hollywood, where the producers pounced on him with glad cries.

Since then Taylor has made 23 films, a popular television series, "Hong Kong," and graduated himself to the status of producer as well as actor.

Arab East Is in Danger of More Turmoil

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
AP Special Correspondent
CAIRO (AP) — In the heart of the Arab East — only a few years ago the storm center of a world crisis — anxious watch is being kept on developments which once again could plunge this area into turmoil.

Eyes are fastened on a chaotic Syria. Observers often refer to it as the Red Chinese situation in miniature, one which could explode from internal pressures and place Syria's neighbors in jeopardy.

From guarded remarks, one gathers that Egyptian leaders, from President Gamal Abdel Nasser down, are far from happy about developments.

As viewed in Cairo, Syria seems in the hands of an irrational regime, headed by representatives of the far-left splinter of the Baath — Arab Social Revolution — party.

Like Red China, its leaders seem to be lashing out in all directions at real and imagined enemies.

Like Red China, its increasing isolation could impel it to measures which would involve other nations.

This month marks the 10th anniversary of the crisis in the Arab East which grew from the Suez imbroglio. At the end of October, 1956, Britain, France and Israel launched a synchronized attack on Egypt, attempting to seize the canal zone.

In a rare show of togetherness, the Soviet Union and the United States put a stop to that.

Today tension is rising again, and once again the crisis has the look of one which could involve powers outside the Arab East.

Soviet presence in the Middle East, in the wake of a Communist bloc arms deal with Egypt and military aid to Syria, underscored the Communists' interest in establishing their influence in the area and gave each succeeding upheaval the look of an international crisis.

Since 1959 this element has faded.

Soviet policy regarding the area, whose oil supplies European industry, became markedly cautious. The Arabs' own inter-Arab disputes came more and more to be regarded as internal affairs. The threat of involving big powers diminished.

But now world attention is again being focused on the area. The United Nations Security Council is looking into Israel's charges of Syrian border aggression. Tension is rising on the frontier between Jordan and Syria. The Soviet Union has cautioned Israel against using force in the new dispute, thus bringing Moscow back into the picture.

who likes to play harder than Taylor, and nobody who likes to work harder when he's on the job. He brings a fine breezy zest to anything he does.

"Without being artsy-crafty about it, which I'm not," he remarked, "I am very conscious of my duty to entertain."

"For some strange reason I love to do it, and I am paid an enormous sum of money to do it, and unless I do the job well I feel blankety-blank guilty."

Taylor has no overlay of sophistication. He is muscledly proud of being Australian.

"The only security an Australian has if he isn't intellectually brilliant," he said smiling, "is the knowledge that, when in doubt, and if he needs to, he can always knock you on your ears. He can always retreat to that."

Everybody is afraid of something in this "Age of anxiety."

What is Rod Taylor afraid of?

"Death is all I can think of," he replied. "I've got a lot of problems, but I love every crowded second of life. If you're an athlete you don't think anybody can beat you, and I'd like to live forever."

Queen Who Sews to Meet Mrs. Johnson

By JOY MILLER
AP Women's Editor

On the other side of the world, waiting for Lady Bird Johnson, are a queen who sews her own clothes, a First Lady who won a beauty contest, a prime minister's wife who runs a dress shop.

Five other women, not a whit less colorful, are waiting, too.

They all will be hostesses to the U.S. First Lady when she arrives with President Johnson in six Far Eastern countries on a 17-day, 25,000-mile journey that may turn out to be her most memorable adventure.

She herself has visited the Philippines and Thailand, Australia, New Zealand, South Korea and Malaysia will be new to her, although, with her customary thoroughness, she has studied up on the countries, peoples, institutions and statutes.

When Mrs. Johnson arrives in New Zealand Oct. 19 she will have two hostesses: Lady Laura Fergusson, wife of the queen's representative, Gov. Gen. Sir Bernard Fergusson, and Norma Holyoake, wife of Prime Minister Keith J. Holyoake.

While the American First Lady is staying at the governor general's home, Lady Fergusson will be her hostess. Mrs. Holyoake is expected to entertain her at a luncheon.

When the presidential party reaches Australia, the second stop, the idea is to let Mrs. Johnson see and be seen. Her assistant press secretary, Marta Ross, has been in Canberra, Australia's national capital, for some days preparing for the visit.

When Lady Bird Johnson greets the prime minister's wife, Mrs. Harold E. Holt, it will be renewing a friendship begun when the Holts visited Washington.

Zara Holt is a plump, gay, warmhearted woman who opened her first dress shop in Melbourne at 18 and now conducts one of Australia's leading fashion houses in her spare time. Mother of three married sons, she, like Mrs. Johnson, is a devoted companion to her husband. The Holts travel together, play tennis and waterski together.

In the Philippines, the third stop, the Johnsons will be returning a neighborly call on President and Mrs. Ferdinand E. Marcos who visited and captivated Washington only last month.

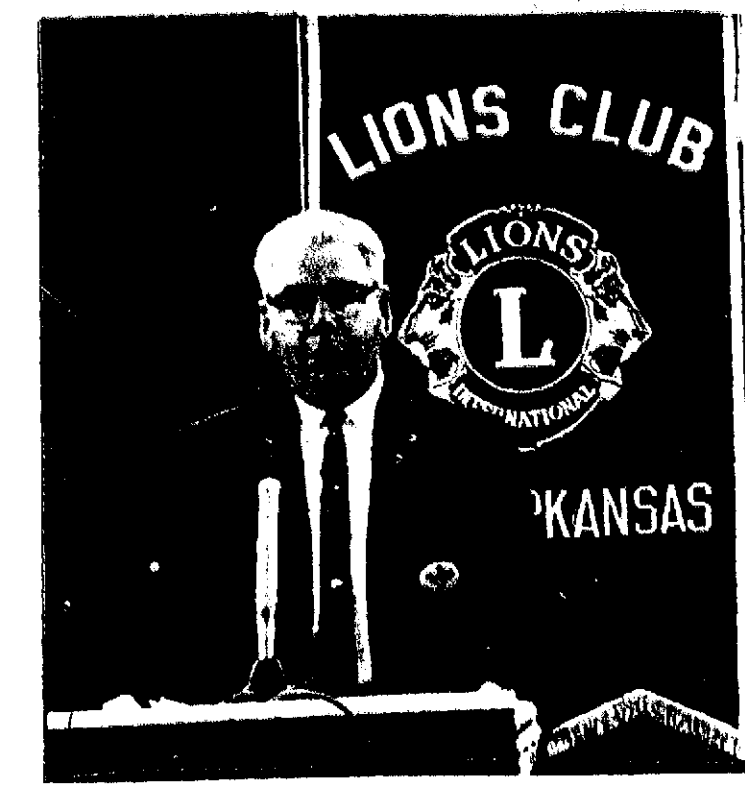

Dressed in butterfly-sleeved ternos, the national Philippine costume, the lovely Imelda Marcos will be Lady Bird Johnson's knowledgeable guide and hostess.

A statuesque 5 feet 7, Mrs. Marcos — who was Miss Manila in 1954 — will be pleased to show off, among other national treasures, her three children, Imelda, 11, Ferdinand Jr., 7, and Irene, 5.

On to Thailand, it will be exchanging one beautiful young hostess for another. Queen Sirikit, 34, is considered one of the best-dressed women in the world. She speaks fluent French and English, loves classical and modern music, paints, keeps active in charitable organizations and the Red Cross, and is the fond mother of four.

Francis Lehar, Hungarian composer, wrote the "Merry Widow" Waltz.

Law Student Scholarship

MEMPHIS (AP) — James Forrest Laws Jr. of Forrest City, Ark., a journalism student at Memphis State University, received Monday the first Mike McGee journalism scholarship from the Memphis Press-Scimitar.

The son of Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Laws, he is the editor of the twice-weekly Tiger Rag, the student newspaper. He has worked on the Forrest City Times-Herald and the Memphis Press-Scimitar.

The $250 scholarship was initiated by the press club in memory of L. H. W. (Mike) McGee, real estate editor of the Memphis Commercial Appeal for 24 years until his death July 6.

Says Foe's Initial Means Phony

By JAMES E. WALTERS

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Democrat Milton J. Shapp, in formally opening his campaign for governor, said the middle initial of his Republican opponent, Lt. Gov. Raymond P. Shafer, stands for "phony." A few days later, Shafer said Shapp was obsessed with personal power and wild-eyed schemes.

These were, as it turned out, some of the milder things Shapp and Shafer have been saying about each other in a campaign devoted more to invective than to issue.

Both parties admit to a certain amount of frustration in finding a clear-cut, central issue.

Shapp's campaign is built primarily on two themes: Pennsylvania has not progressed in these recent years of national prosperity as rapidly as her sister states, and a program of free higher education for all Pennsylvania youths, to be financed by a $4-billion to $7-billion bond issue.

Shafer is running on the record of Gov. William W. Scranton's administration and says Shapp is a "prophet of gloom and doom" who would spend the state into bankruptcy.

Shafer has likened Shapp to "an old medicine man who bottled up a lot of worthless promises and is trying to flim-flam the public into buying them."

Shapp has said Shafer and other Republican leaders "are either financial idiots or knaves," adding: "In my opinion, they are both."

Scranton, ineligible to succeed himself under state law, solidly supports Shafer, his second in command the past four years. He has described a Shapp position as "mmskultery," and has said:

"Our opponent is obsessed with power. He will do anything, say anything, promise anything, spend any amount of money to get what he wants."

Two campaign publications have set off controversies.

Democrat David L. Lawrence, the governor before Scranton, has accused the Republicans of "committing a great fraud on the President of the United States." This was a reference to a publication put out by the GOP State Committee which quotes Johnson as saying "Pennsylvanians have a lot to be proud of. You have been a leader" and listing a number of things such as education. Johnson made those comments in a "nonpolitical" visit to a Daltown, Pa., centennial celebration this summer.

"I've checked it out with the White House and I've been authorized to say the President's references were to the past and not the present state government," Lawrence told a $100-a-plate fund-raising dinner.

"Sheaky, measly, arrogant and shoddy." That's the way Republican Sen. Hugh Scott described the distribution of a 48-page booklet at a Shafer dinner in Philadelphia. Using as its title a frequent quote from Shafer — "Something wonderful is happening in Pennsylvania," it showed pictures of slum areas, polluted streams, and poverty-stricken people — and urged a vote for Shapp.

Shapp, a Philadelphia businessman, spent $1.4 million of his personal fortune to upset the Democratic organization candidate in the primary. These huge expenditures have been a major GOP target.

In return, Shapp has claimed that Shafer "is bankrolled by the Republican party's traditional fat-cat hidden bosses, and these bosses have him on a string."

Adds Shapp: "Nobody has bought me."

Several polls of voter sentiment all have shown Shafer, 48, a Meadville attorney and Yale law graduate, is ahead. However, Shafer, 53, is not far behind, and the number of voters who say they have formed no opinion is huge — as much as 50 per cent in some cases.

Magic Number in Texas 2 Million Votes

By GARTH JONES
AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Two million votes is the magic figure in the Texas race for the U.S. Senate.

"I think Mr. Waggoner Carr is in trouble if he doesn't get at least a two-million turnout," says Hank Brown, president of the Texas AFL-CIO which is backing neither Democrat Carr nor Republican John G. Tower, seeking re-election to the Senate seat once held by Lyndon B. Johnson.

"With 1.6 or 1.7 million voters, we've got it won," says a Republican campaign official.

"With two million we've still got a good chance."

"There's no doubt a tight vote would hurt the Democrats while the Republican candidate would be helped," says Gov. John B. Connally, who has put his Democratic organization solidly behind Carr.

Carr also has an endorsement from President Johnson, and there have been unconfirmed reports that Johnson will campaign for him.

Both Tower and Carr are conservatives. Tower, 41, never mentions he is a Republican and stresses his cooperation with both parties in Washington.

Carr, 48, claims he could be more effective as a Democratic senator working with a Democratic President, an all-Democratic House delegation from Texas, and a Democratic governor.

The Texas Election Bureau predicts a turnout of anywhere from 2 to 2.5 million of the 3.1 million registered voters. Only 1.25 million voted in the May Democratic primary. Republicans had no statewide contests.

The winning margin may lie with a loosely-organized ever-changing group usually called "the Texas liberals." This group consists generally of liberal Democrats led by U.S. Sen. Ralph W. Yarborough, Brown's labor unions, and the Negro and Latin American minorities.

The liberals this year have merged their efforts to defeat Carr with the effort by Republicans and ultraconservative Democrats to re-elect Tower.

Optimistic Republicans got their victory forecast by adding the 600,000 GOP vote they have produced in recent general elections to 150,000 they say Tower automatically draws as an incumbent plus a possible 400,000 votes from defecting liberal Democrats.

In the past Democrats have cast large votes through heavy turnouts of Negro and Latin American minorities. This was the case in 1960 when John F. Kennedy carried Texas, which twice had voted for Republican Dwight D. Eisenhower.

But organized labor, which usually leads and directs these get-out-the-vote campaigns, is mostly silent this year.

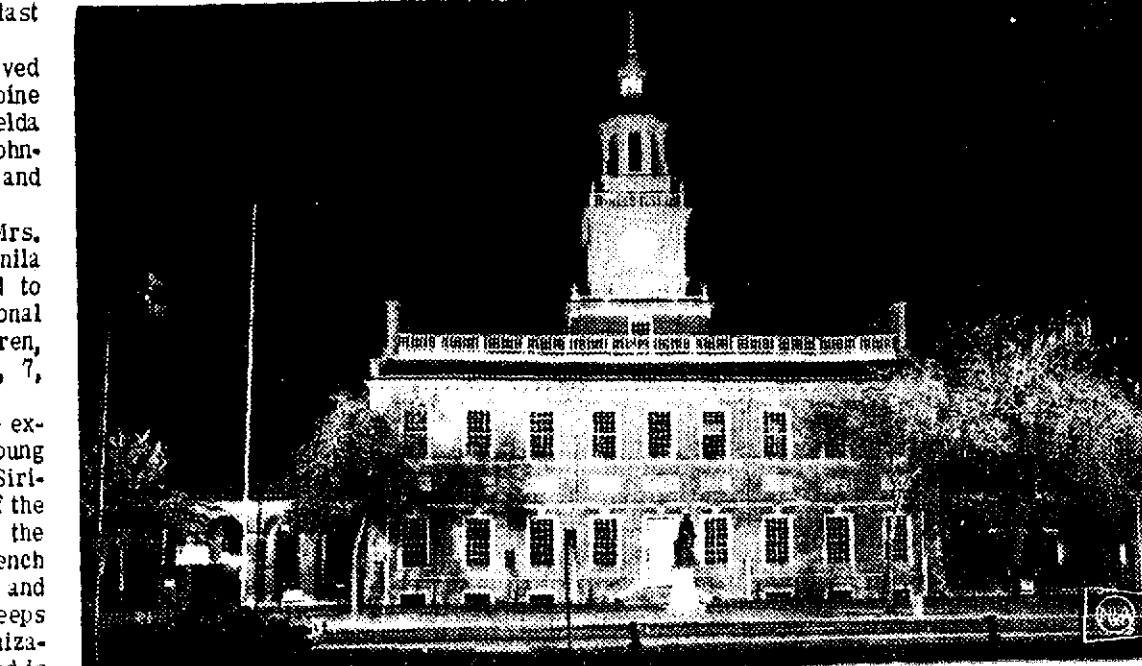

"Our position is that neither one of them is worth our help," said Brown. "We are not going to spend a dime or a postage stamp on either one."

Morality Report Is Attacked

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
LONDON (AP) — Some British clergymen have attacked a church-sponsored report on Christian morality which says extramarital sexual relations cannot be condemned in every instance.

"There are certain rules of almost invariable validity, and one of these is that fornication is wrong," said Dr. William Greer, Anglican Bishop of Manchester.

The report was prepared by a 13-member working group of the British Council of Churches, which is composed of all Christian denominations except the Roman Catholics.

LIGHTING UP Independence Hall is a new feature in the renovation of Philadelphia's historic heart. Only six special lamps, called Lucalox and introduced last year by General Electric, are necessary for the brilliant illumination of the nation's birthplace for the benefit of nighttime visitors.

 Some Hard-Nose Facts
 About Vitamins You Take

 By WAYNE G. BRANDSTADT, M.D.
 Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

Q—What is vitamin P? Does it improve one's hearing?

A—Very little is known about vitamin P or rutin, probably because no proved deficiency of this vitamin has yet been observed. There is no evidence that it improves hearing. It appears to be closely related to vitamin C, the vitamin that prevents scurvy.

Q—Is rose hip tea of any value? Would its use over a long period have any bad effects?

A—Rose hips, the fleshy fruit of the rose, are a rich source of vitamin C and are widely used for this purpose in northern countries where citrus fruits do not grow. Since this vitamin is quickly eliminated from the body, no vitamin poisoning results from taking more than the body's daily requirement.

Q—A recent newspaper article on vitamins stated that if vitamin E is taken daily for three months it will cause chronic cystic mastitis to disappear completely. Is this true? Elsewhere I have read that it is not essential in the human diet. Do you agree?

A—I know of no evidence that vitamin E will benefit cystic mastitis but it has been used with some success in the treatment of cystic fibrosis, a hereditary disease of children. There is no daily requirement of this vitamin in human beings.

Q—My eyes ache. Would vitamin A tablets help this condition?

A—Vitamin A is essential at all ages for good vision. It does not follow, however, that it would relieve pain in or near the eyes. Your eye doctor should determine the cause of the discomfort. Too much vitamin A can cause one form of vitamin poisoning.

Q—Is vitamin C good for back trouble? Do you recom- mend vitamin C pills for everyone?

A—There are many kinds of back trouble but vitamin C would not be likely to cure any of them. I don't recom- mend vitamin pills of any kind unless a person has a vitamin deficiency or must be on a diet so restricted that he cannot get the vitamins he needs in the food he eats.

Q—My doctor has pre- scribed nicotinic acid for me. Should it cause me to feel flushed? What foods are a good source of this vitamin?

A—This vitamin dilates the blood vessels of the skin and may thus cause flushing. It is found abundantly in lean meats, dried yeast and whole grain cereals.

Please send your questions and comments to Wayne G. Brandstadt, M.D., in care of this paper. While Dr. Brandstadt cannot answer individual letters he will answer letters of general interest in future columns.

Thunderstorms

The greatest thunderstorm activity in the world occurs in Java, where such storms happen on an average of 225 days per year. It is estimated that at any one moment there are about 1,800 thunderstorms in progress throughout the world, according to the Encyclopaedia Britannica.

Losing Duel

CAPE TOWN, South Africa (AP) — The large swells of the normally choppy sea around the Cape of Storms were suddenly disturbed at Danger Point on a quiet afternoon.

About 200 yards offshore from the scenic Cape Town beach a grim life-and-death duel was being fought between a giant squid and a seven-foot Southern Right calf whale.

The baby whale's mother cir- cled helplessly near the death struggle as the squid slowly drowned the calf, its six-foot- long tentacles clamped tightly around its head.

For 90 minutes lighthouse keepers at Danger Point watched the little whale battle gamely, finally weakening under the pressure of the squid.

Later a third whale joined the cow, but could do nothing to end the battle. Meantime the calf continued to drown, slowly, as it surfaced less and less frequently for air.

Assistant lighthouse keeper Stephanus van Vuuren said after- wards: "We watched the fight through binoculars. The little whale would stay down for 10 to 12 minutes, then come up. It would just have enough time to spout, just two or three sec- onds, then go down again."

"We saw it lashing with its tail in the water and the squid's tentacles wrapped around its head. Each time the baby came up to breathe, the mother whale surfaced with it and then went down with her infant."

"The little whale was only just able to reach the surface to spout. The squid never moved. Finally we saw it come up for a second, blow, then go down. We never saw it again..."

New Zealanders Saw the U.S.A.

AUCKLAND, New Zealand (AP) — One in every 250 New Zealanders visited the United States in 1965, according to Charles A. McGee, regional director of the U.S. Travel Service.

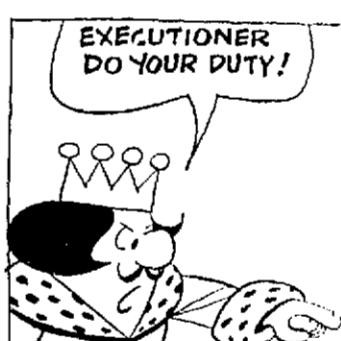

He said this was the highest visitor percentage of any country, except for the neighbors, Canada and Mexico.

"Two hardy New Zealanders also hold a Greyhound bus travel record," McGee told a travel meeting. "On a '99 days for 99 dollars' ticket, they covered 32,000 miles in 42 days."

Did Portugal Beat Columbus?

NEW YORK (AP) — Nearly everyone knows that the discovery of America has been claimed for others than Columbus.

Only last year the publication of a medieval map gave fresh impetus to the claims of Leif Ericson, the Viking, Irish monks, the Welsh Prince Madoc and others have had their theories. Now comes Ian Campbell, an English scholar, to boost a new book, "Loststone and Flame and Star," to push the theory that a Danish-Portuguese expedition made it to the New World over the classic Atlantic sea route from Iceland to Spain and to Labrador a century before Columbus' voyage in 1492.

"There is a whole lot of evidence," he is largely confident, "that it is highly probable."

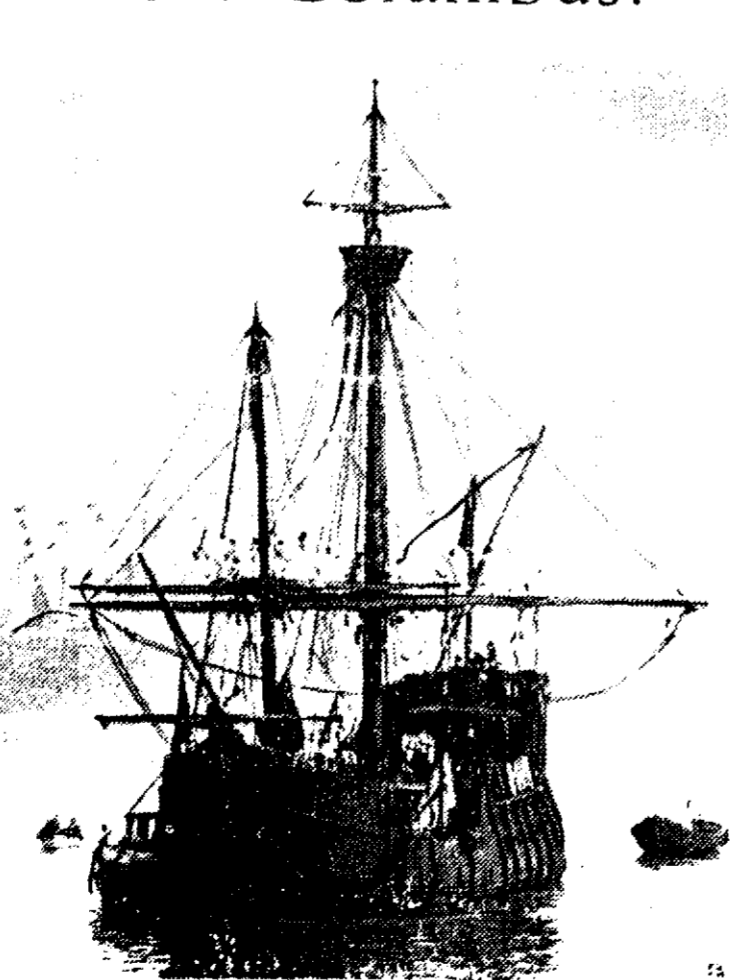

In the latter half of the 15th century, Portugal's maritime exploration was so active that it would have expected to find out about the existence of a sea route from Iceland to Spain and to Labrador a century before Columbus' voyage in 1492.

Ian Campbell, an English scholar, to boost a new book, "Loststone and Flame and Star," to push the theory that a Danish-Portuguese expedition made it to the New World over the classic Atlantic sea route from Iceland to Spain and to Labrador a century before Columbus' voyage in 1492.

There is one great advantage to the duplicate technique. The duplicate player who always goes after as many tricks as possible is likely to be a good rubber bridge player because he will make more contracts than the man who plays carelessly.

Here is a hand from a duplicate game which illustrates overtrick technique. After the ten of spades opening South can count 10 top tricks. He sees an easy 11th if he can get a 3-3 diamond break.

You can see that no suits are going to break yet there is an expert line of play to produce an 11th trick that does not jeopardize anything at all.

SMOKEY HAS COMPANY

The fellow at the right is well-known to travelers. Smokey is a friendly bear, but he takes his work seriously—guarding the nation's forests. And he has lots of company in the never-ending battle to preserve America's scenic beauty. Members of the animal kingdom are being called upon everywhere to aid in the struggle against the villain of this story—the Litterbug, left, created to typify the thoughtless despoilers who spread rubbish and ruin across the American landscape. Here are just a few of the symbols called to the colors by states and cities across the nation for this animated warfare.

Ferocious-looking Litter Long Horn is on the job in Texas.

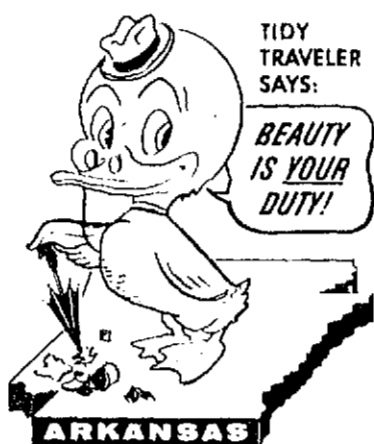

In Pennsylvania, it's Howdy Coon, an animal known for clean living, and he has a brother in Maine, Tidy.

Perky Ozzie the Otter passes the good word in Michigan.

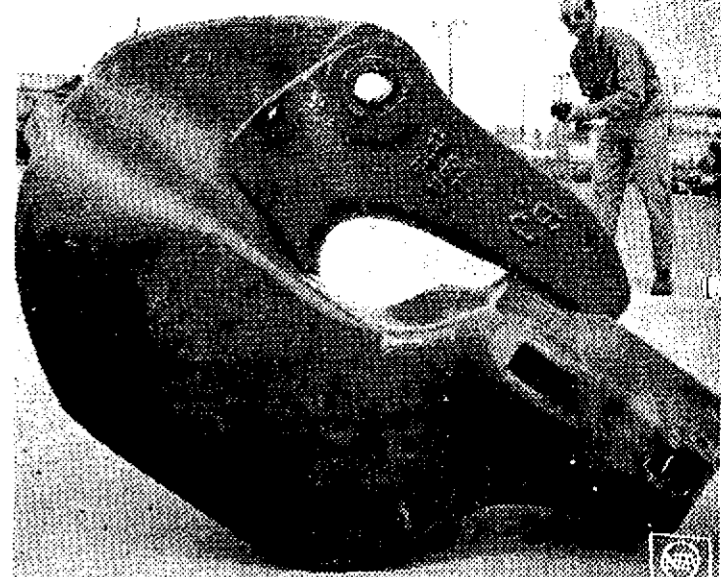

In Alaska, a walrus known as Willie presides over "Operation Big Sweep."

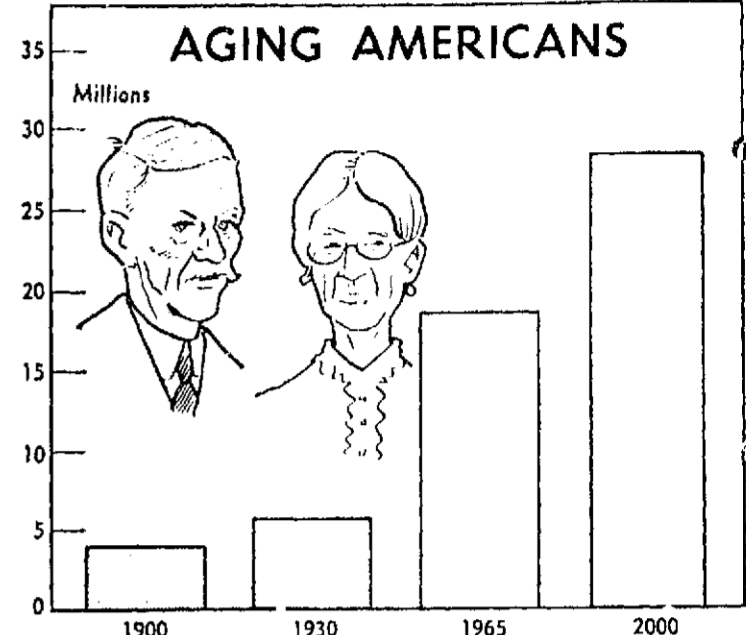

Tidy Traveler, a mallard of sorts, promotes "Beauty Is Your Duty" in Arkansas.

Albuquerque, N.M., handles the job with Dusty Roadrunner.

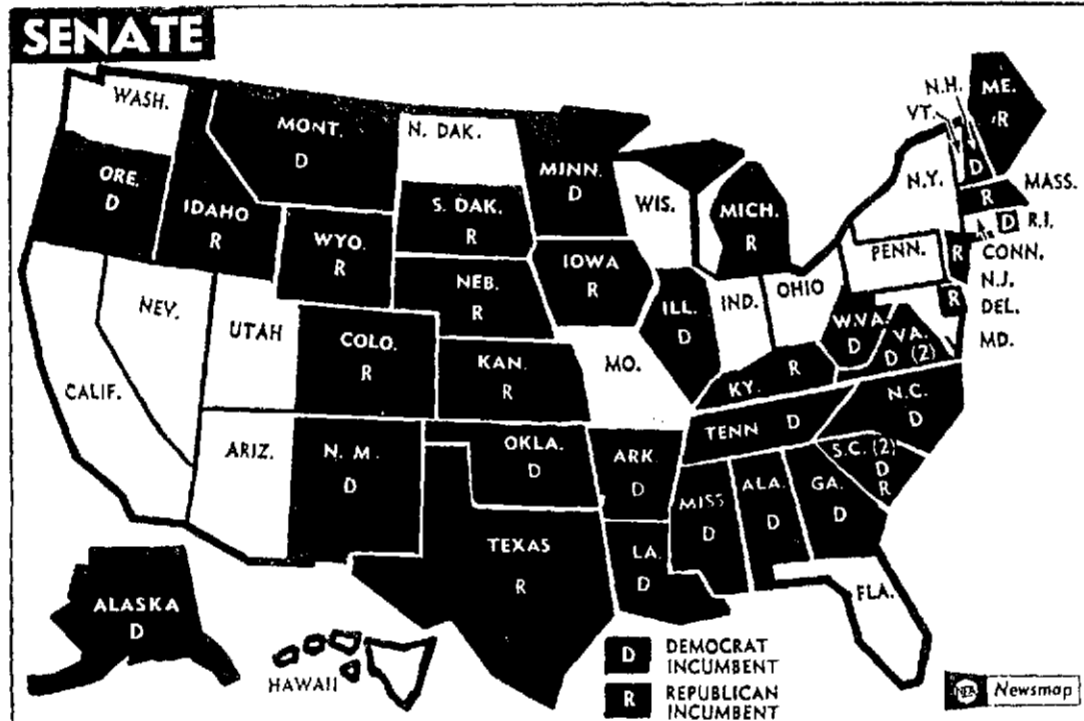

THE HEAD OF A MONSTER ROBOT may be what first comes to mind, but it's actually a massive oil well rigging hook at the Borg-Warner plant in Houston, Tex. The giant hook is used to lower and lift strings of pipe weighing up to 500 tons.

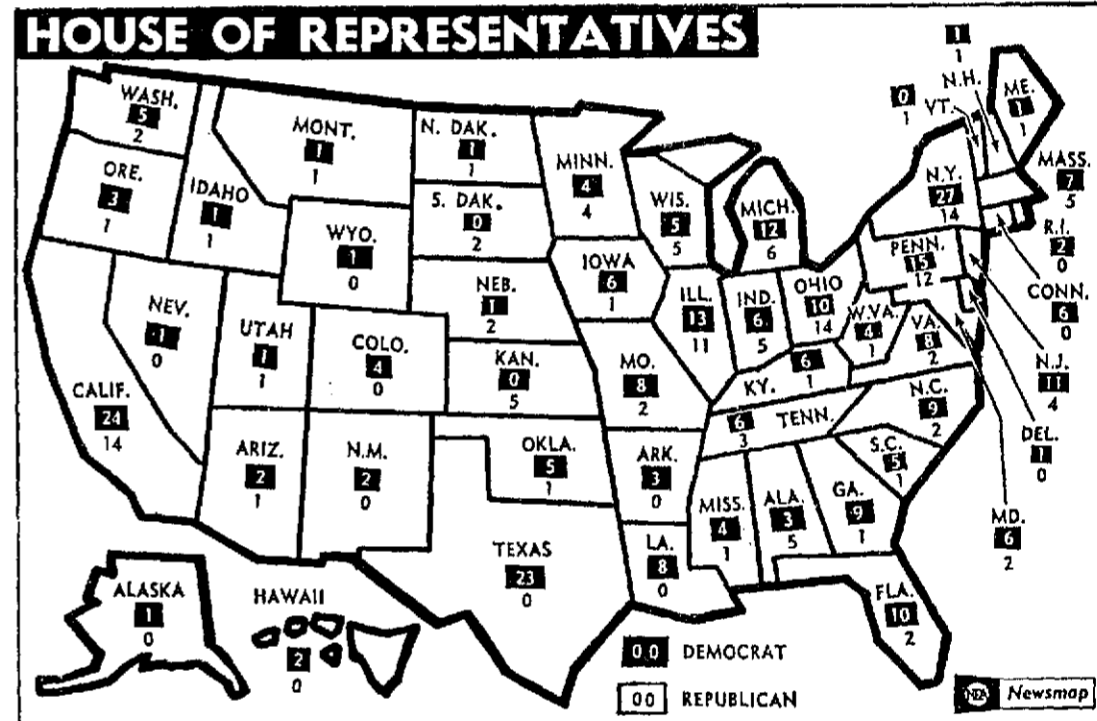

America's older population has grown rapidly during the 20th century, census figures show. The percentage of women among the elderly also has been increasing steadily. In 1900, there were 98 women to 100 men 65 or older. In 1965 the ratio was 129 women to 100 men and in 2000 it is expected to be 148 to 100.

BATTLEFIELD CIRCUIT JUDGE Capt. John F. Rudy, right, of Washington, D.C., starts out with his legal assistant, Sgt. William D. Rice of Kingston, N.Y., for a motorcycle tour of his area—the Vietnamese war zone around Pleiku in the central highlands. Rudy is judge advocate at Pleiku air base supplying legal aid to military units throughout the area. Rice literally rides shotgun, carrying an M-16 rifle as well as a portable typewriter and satchel full of legal forms.

Thirty-five Senate seats in 33 states (two each in Virginia and South Carolina) are at stake in balloting across the nation Nov. 8. Democrats now hold 20 of the seats and Republicans 15. There is no chance that the Democrats will lose control of the Senate—now split 67 Democrats to 33 Republicans—this time around, but their top-heavy majority is likely to be cut by Republican gains in several states. Key races are in Illinois, Massachusetts, Minnesota, Michigan, Montana, Oregon, Nebraska, New Hampshire, Rhode Island, Tennessee, Texas and Wyoming.

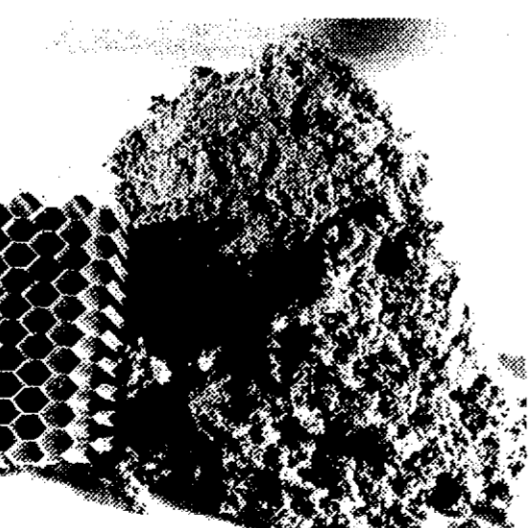

Republicans stand to make their most significant election gains in the House of Representatives—now divided 294 Democrats and 139 Republicans with two vacancies—where all 435 seats are at stake in the Nov. 8 voting. Campaign attention focuses on some 50 so-called "freshmen," first-term Democrats from normally Republican districts who rode into office on the Johnson landslide two years ago and are given major credit for providing the votes that pushed the President's Great Society legislation through Congress.

1,000 SECONDS FROM HOME

During the fiery descent to earth, the blunt "toe" of the Apollo spacecraft is exposed to temperatures up to 20,000 degrees.

Plummeting toward earth at 25,000 miles per hour, three American astronauts on the first manned Apollo flight will begin the final and most dangerous lap of their history-making journey when they enter the atmosphere at 400,000 feet above the planet's surface. For 16 minutes the passage through the heat barrier will expose the spacecraft to metal-melting temperatures. To guarantee safe passage, a special honeycomb heat shield has been developed. It already has passed its first test with flying colors in the launching of an unmanned Apollo capsule.

Major components of the Apollo heat shield are a stainless steel honeycomb, left, and shredded phenolic epoxy resin, right, resembling sweepings from a barber shop floor.

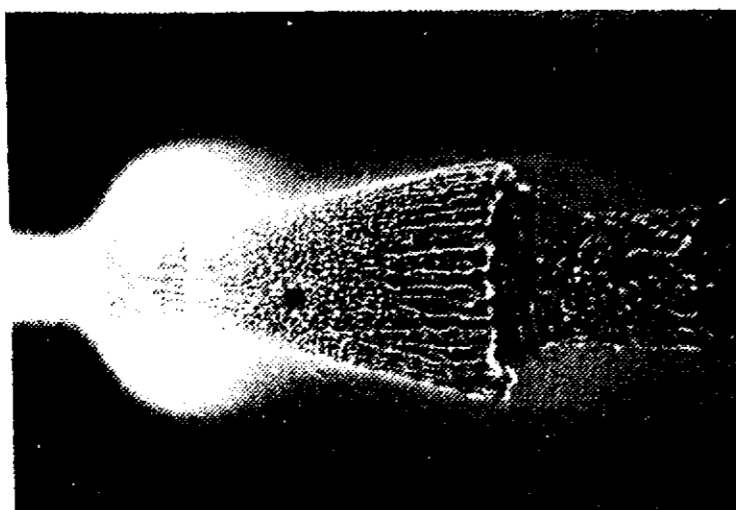

The honeycomb is positioned over the aluminum cockpit and the inner smooth stainless steel heat shield. Each of the 370,000 cells is then filled by hand with resin.

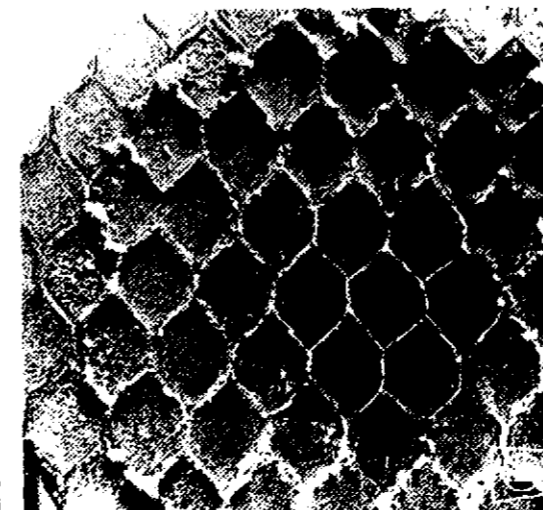

ALLAN KRENEK, 17, uses a pickup truck and a chain in an attempt to pull a large tree limb out of the street in Denver after some five inches of snow fell on the area the night of Oct. 13. The early snowfall caused heavy damage to trees and power lines.

Laboratory simulation of reentry conditions enables technicians at Aero Corp. Wilmington, Mass., developers of the shield, to test behavior of the shield.

Subjected to an inferno of 20,000 degrees, a sample shield the size of a baseball bat drips as it absorbs the intense heat to prevent it from reaching and melting the inner heat shield and cockpit.

The heat shield consumes itself in withstanding the high reentry temperatures. The fused resin is captured in the still intact honeycomb cell system.
